

2020 Michigan Orff Collage ORFF SCHULWERK

Professional Development

Level I

Miller Elementary School, Dearborn, Michigan 48126

June 15-26 8:30-4:00pm M-F

Miriam Moore has been teaching elementary music and choirs using the Orff approach for over thirty years. With Level III Orff certification from the University of Denver and apprentice levels teaching in Cincinnati, she is an Orff teacher educator and frequent Michigan and National Orff Conference presenter. With a Masters' degree from Oakland University, Miriam brings new research and philosophical perspectives to her work. She has been on staff as a voice teacher at the Clarkston Conservatory of Music since 1975 and has taught General Music for Cranbrook Schools since 1999.

Level I Basic/Ensemble/Pedagogy and Recorder

Judith Thompson-Barthwell formerly taught at Emerson School in Ann Arbor for 12 years. A public-school music educator in the Romulus Community Schools for 32 years, Judith has taught elementary general/vocal music, dance and choir K-12. Her Orff certification includes the University of Denver, Memphis State University, and the Orff Institute. She has taught movement in several Orff Certification courses around the country, at the Orff Institute and in Barcelona, Spain. She is the MMEA Michigan Music Teacher of the Year for 2012, and currently the Treasure of AOSA.

Level I Basic/Ensemble/Pedagogy and Movement

Repertory of Primary Orff Sources

June 29-July 3 10:00-1:00pm

The primary sources for Orff Schulwerk are a treasure trove of pieces that can inspire artistry and creativity in students and teachers alike. Participants in this course will have the opportunity to learn, perform, and extend repertoire drawn from the Music for Children Volumes and Supplemental books while also digging deeper into the processes that make these pieces accessible and appropriate for use with students of all ages. This course is excellent for anyone who has completed Level I.

Matt McCoy teaches elementary music and choirs at the Emerson School in Ann Arbor, Michigan. Prior to his time at Emerson, Matt worked in various educational contexts including public and independent schools, children's choir organizations, and universities in both the Mid-Atlantic and Midwest regions of the United States. As a clinician specializing in process-based teaching, Matt is a frequent presenter at AOSA National Conferences and at local chapters around the United States.
